SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

A Republican Senatorial Convention of the Seventeenth Senatorial district, comprising the county of Rock, is hereby called to meet at the Court House in the city of Janesville, on the 19th day of September, 1881, at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, to select two senatorial delegates to represent the district in the Republican State Convention, to be held at Madison on the 21st day of September, 1881, and to transact any other business that may be deemed appropriate. Each of the towns and wards will be entitled to the same number of delegates as in the last county convention. Dated Sept. 8, 1981.

JOHN R. BENNETT, S. T. MERRILL. I. M. BENNETT. S. S. NORTHROP,

W. H. TRIPP,

While Mr. Arthur has been placed in an awkward position, for more than two months, he has taken that course which the country will thoroughly admire.

There were six men hauged at Fort Smith, Arkansas, to-day. Three were white and three were Indians. All of these men were guilty of murder, each having killed his man.

There is still silence in the Democratic camp in Wisconsin as to the candidate for Governor. No man cares to pay .for being hit, and the Republicans will strike from the shoulder this fall.

There are indications of improvement in the condition of President Garfield. He is much better than for several days past, and the latest bulletin says, "On the whole the past twenty-four hours give evidence of favorable progress."

Ex-Secretary of the Navy Richard W. Thompson, who is regarded as an able constitutional lawyer, gives it as his opinion that it would be entirely proper for President Garfield to call Vice President Arthur to Washington to discharge the duties of the Presidential office until the President is able to discharge them himself. His opinion is entitled to some consideration, as it appeared to the average mind to be based on common sense and sound reason.

The forest fires of northern Michigan have been as destructive and appalling as the great fires in Wisconsin in October, 1871. The counties in Michigan that have suffered the worst are Huron and Samilic. Already over 200 persons are known to have been burned to death, and no doubt there are scores of others whose bodies have not been found. The destruction of property has been exceedingly large, running up to many hundreds of thousand of dollars, and it is estimated that the loss of life will not be less than 500. An appeal for aid has been made to the people of the United

An effort will be made in some of the eastern cities to prohibit the sale of toy pistols. The fatality resulting from these toys was so great during the past summer that public attention was caraestly directed toward the matter. Judge Depure, of Newark, New Jersey, in a charge to the Grand July, concurred in the opinion that a prohibition should be put upon the sale of the pistols. It is a lamentable fact that there were more deaths in the United States resulting from the use of toy pistols last 4th of July, than from all accidents combined. These facts warrant the authorities in taking that course which will lead to the

A report having been put in circulation that Congressman Williams was actively engaged in canvassing against the nomination of Colonel Ole C. Johnson for Secretary of State, and in favor of Captain E. G. Timme, of Kenosha, that gentleman has written a letter denying that he has taken any steps to advance the interest of one or to defeat the other. Mr. Williams says in the letter: "The fact is that while Captain Timme is a gentleman whom I highly esteem, as I certainly do Colonel John. son, I have had no communication, either verbal or written, with or from Captain, Timme, or any friend of his in Kenosha county, touching the matter of his nomination." He also says that when spoken to in regard to the nomination of Colonel Johnson prejudicing his political intorests, he has invariably said that Rock county had supported him ungrudgingly for twelve years, and that he should not have anything to do with the caudidacy of either Colonel Johnson or Captain

The Farmers' Alliance which met at Portage in this State on Tuesday, was not a success numerically speaking. All told there were but thirty-two delegates present. Considering that the alliance has representatives in almost every county in the State, the attendance was extremely small. The Milwaukee Republican was not far from the mark when it said that the "very limited number in attendance, and the small portion of the agricultural districts of the State which sent delegates seem to warrant the conclusion that the farmers of the State genorally took but little interest in the convention, and regarded it as simply a demtent on promoting political schemes than real reforms." Mon who generally move off in a movement of that kind are men who are politically ambitions and are working, not for the masses of the farmers, but for themselves. farmers belonging to it. In some respects they are representative men--that is, they represent the interest of the agricultural community—but their schemes are not practical and never be carried out by the course they have adopted. There is enough intelligence among the farmers of Wisconsin to know that this is not the way to effect reforms, and for this reason the attendance was exceedingly small and the proceedings of an uninteresting character. Should either the Republican or the Democratic party adopt a platform or nominate a candidate autagonistic to the industrial and commercial interests of the people, then it will be time for the Farmers' Alliance to get itself together and make a move to break down the party which does these The Republican party has things. never in its history adopted a platform or nominated candidates that misrepresents the interest of the people.

The doctor later stated, in answer to inquiries: "The President is getting along splendidly. Ho is better at the present time than for many days.'

"How do you account for this remarkably rapid change for the better?"

"Well, the wind you see has shifted to the north; it is somewhat cooler, and much less oppressive. The pure atmosphere is commencing to have its effects." "What does this extraordinary change indicate, doctor?"

"It indicates convalescence."

"Do you really think the patient is convalescent?"

"I do, surely, and the symptoms bear me out in that theory."

Terrible Devastation and Loss of life by Morest Pire.

Detroit, Sept. 8-Few additional particulars have been received this afternoon. From Lexington, Sanilae county, the following additional casualties were reported: In Moor township, Mrs. Strong and two children; Humphrey, the stage driver; Mrs. Frank Dennison, child, and sister; Paul Wotzel, wife, five five went through the whole train, one children, and George Krotch, who went to their rescue. Twenty persons are reported burned to death in Caster township. In Bingham township, Thomas Barnes, wife, sister, mother, and two children. In Austin township, an old man named Payne, Michael Welch, and two children, Nearly every farmer in that town-ship has lost either bis house, barn, crof s, or all of them.

The loss of life and property is immense. Dead bodies are being brought in from all directions. It is estimated that 500 people are homeless and in immediate want of assistance. The farmers in newer townships lost live stock, houses, barns, crops, everything. A farmer who just came in from Austin township saved his family of eight children in a field of buckwheat, but he says the whole country in that part is totally destroyed, and many lives have been destroyed, and many lives have been

APPEAL FOR AID.

A Story of Suffering from the Burn ed District of Michigan, DETROIT, Sept. 8-The following ap-

To the people of the United States: A most appalling disaster has fallen upon á large portion of the counties of Huron country recently covered with forests, and now occupied by nearly 50,-000 people, largely recently settled, and either poor or in very moderate circumstances. In the whole of this section there has been but little rain during the past two months, and everything was dry, when, on Monday, September 5, a hurricane swept over it, carrying with it a sheet of dame that hardly anything could withstand. We have advices of 200 persons burned to death, many of them by the roadside or in the fields while seeking places of safety, and it is probable twice this number has perished. We have reports from twenty or more townships in which scarcely a more townships in which scarcely a house, barn, or supplies of any kind are left, and thousands of people are destitute and helpless. All of these people require immediate assistance, and most of them must depend on charity for months to come. General Budley's Views of the Pen sion Laws.

Washington, Sept. 8.—A reporter of The Inter Ocean to day called on General Dudley, commissioner of pensions, to ascertain the truthfulness of the report that he was preparing data for the purpose of recommending to Congress a change in the pension laws, whereby every soldier who had ever been in a rebel prison should receive a pension without further evidence of disability. When interrogated in regard to the subject, he replied that he was not anticipating any such action; that while he was in favor of every disabled soldier who inin favor of every disabled soldier who in-curred his disability in the service and in line of duty being provided for by the government in a proper way, that it did not follow that there must be new legis-lation to obtain the end. "In my opin-ion" he said, "our pension laws as they are now, are without a parallel in the history of any government on earth as to the liberal provision made for the soldiers. I am in favor of the laws as they are, and do not see why the most ample justice cannot be awarded to every ap-plicant. À DOUBLE AMBUSH.

We lived in Florida (said Mrs. Walters) through all the Seminole war, which lasted seven years, so that I grew up with the names of the great hostile chiefs, Osceola, Alligator, Wild Cat, and Tiger Tail, making a part of my child-bood

A sense of peril was always present with us. I remember the feelings with which we heard of the slaughter of Lieutenant Dade and his command. The tragedy took place in open battle, yet it specified dreadful that so many brave men should be shot down in the dark woods, with the painted savages yelling around them.

In the spring, when I was thirteen and my brother Arthur fifteen, the war and my brother Arthur fifteen, the war was at its worst, and my father talked strongly of removing to a greater distance from the danger.

Among our few slaves, consisting only of two black families, was a half-idiotic young negro named Jason, who had the privilege of wandering protty much as a statement of the would often remain all layin the forest, either lying asleep or inocking the gobble of the wild tarkeys.

One day he returned with an appearance which startled us. His woolly head had been completely shaved, and his black face dyed to a bright scarlet. He had, however, received no real hurt, the ordeal through which he must have passed.

Wo gathered from his broken sentences that he had fallen in with Indians; and it was plain that they had been in some measure true to the proverbial respect of their people for idlots.

An ordinary person they would have sactified without mercy; but when Jason stared aimlessly at the tree-tops, or goobled like a turkey, they simply set their mark upon him, and let him go.

The incident showed that our danger was more immediate than had been supposed; but there was fortunately a squad of Thited States cavalry picketed within a few miles of us, and my father lost no time in notifying the officer in command of what had occurred. The soldiers, however could find nothing of the enemy; and in the mean time we passed a couple of days in very anxious suspense. The movements of Indian warriors are erratic, and to white men unaccountable.

It is My parents began to regain confidence, believing that the Seminoles were gone from the neighborhood, as they doubtless were for the time. Father was a still more sudden leap from the old stump, for an Indian, with his rifle still file still stare and that the Indian contained. She knew that the Indian could not fire at father without exposing his own head, and that the moment it appeared it would be covered by her brave boy's rifle.

How our hearts beat for the few moments that intervened! Another gobble came from the stump. Father was articipation of a prize, and Arthur lay still as death in the grass.

All at once we saw the sunlight glance upon a mass of long raven hair that they working his way stealthily toward it in anticipation of a prize, and Arthur lay steal their was a death in the grass.

My parents began to regain confidence, balleving that the Seminoles were gone from the neighborhood, as they doubtless were for the time. Father said they were probably scouts, and that was no telling how they might have scattered themselves, or at what hold seminod them might appear next. He hoped, however, that the presence of the soldiers had led them to abandon the soldiers had led them to abandon the soldiers had led them to abandon that they had been attacking us.

On the third day after Jason's adventure we were feeling much relieved. The ture we were feeling much relieved. The negro men were at work in the fields, and father had gone to a considerable distance from the house. Mother, Arthur and myself, with the female serv-ther and myself, with the female servants, were within-doors.

"Frenchtly, not far off," we heard the gobbie of a wild turkey, or what seemed such, although, as turkeys were not in the habit of approaching so near the house, we imagined Jason to be at his old silly passing again, similating the call which he could so well counterfeit.

The notes were continued with great

The notes were continued with great regularity at intervals of a minute or regularity at intervals of a minute or two, and so natural were they that Arthur would have been all on fire to selze his infe and hurry in quost of the game had he not remembered how often he had been led upon a fruitless chase by the vocal powers of the poor idiot.

"We all excel in something," said my mother, "and Jason was made to call tarkeys. But I do wish he would be quiet; it make me nervous to hear him."

"Jason," said a little negro girl who premises; "why, missus, Jason done gone to sleep in de shade at de back ob wash-house. I done seen him dis minute."

Arthur hastened out-doors, looked behind the wash-house, and having as-sured himself that the black boy had nothing to do with the gobbling, re-turned quickly for his rifle.

"It is a real turkey," he said, "and he's somewhere in the hollow."

The hollow was made by a depression of the ground about fifty rods from the house front, and running parallel with tt. Upon its further skile was a decayed them. stump, some four or five feet high, standing below the sloping bank, and with its top just visible from the house. Of this stump the portion next to the stope had so fallen away as to leave a large cavity capable of containing a

The gobble indicated the turkey's whereabats pretty definitely.

"He's somewhere near that stump," said Arthur; "perhaps inside of it, sitting up on the rotten wood toward the tens. "I'm straid he'll get high enough to see mo. But I'll make a circuit, and creep around where the ground is lower."

He went out at the back door, so as to make sure of not being seen. The land on our right, a few rods from the house.

gully, which crossed it at fair ritle-shot distance from the stump.

Arthur, young as he was, had already become an excellent marksman, having for two years possessed a rifle of his own, which father had bought him, and which was almost always in his hands. We had no doubt that, with anything like an ordinary chance, he would put a ball through the turkey's head, and return in triumph.

But somehow, after he went out, a gudden thought seemed to strike mother.

Wasn't it strange that a turkey should ness. But her nerves had been shaken by poor Jason's incident.

The house had a half story in front, with two small windows above the ground rooms, and mother's feelings impelled her to run up there for a better view. She wished to see where father was, and perhaps might discover something of the wild turkey.

I was close at her side. We saw father with his rifle away off across the fields, and the negroes at a distance from him, engaged in their work. The stump, too, was visible nearly to its foot, and at intervals we caught site of Arthur carefully working his way in a half-circuit toward the gully. toward the gully.

Father had ovidently heard the turkey, and was warlly approaching the spot where it seemed to be. His half-stooping posture showed that he feared the bird might get upon the stump and see him.

Suddenly mother started, and her face had a look of ghastly terror. Something which certainly was no turkey rose a little above the stump, between its shattered rim and the grass of the bank. I saw it, too, and my blood ran cold.
It was something that greatly resembled the head of an Indian. We felt that the face must be precing through that the face must be peering through the grass toward my father, while we saw the black, gleaming hair behind. Without doubt it was a Seminole war-rior in ambush, watching father's ap-prouch.

Mother gave an agonized cry, "What shall I do?" she shall I do?—oh! what shall I do?" she exclaimed.

Would not any signal or outery she could make be misunderstood at such a distance, and only hasten the catastrophe, since father was still thirty rods beyond the Indian, and eighty from the house? Then where was Arthur, who had now disappeared? And should she by a sudden alarm cause him to show himself, might not the Seminole rise up and shoot him on the spot? She was dizzy with her sense of the dreadful situation.

But in a moment I called out to her,

But in a moment I called out to her,
"There's Arthur, mother! there's Arthur!" for I saw him among the rank grass, lying flat upon the ground, within good rilleshot of the stump, which he seemed to be watching intently.

Once again the Indian's head was shown slightly, and we got an instant's glimpso of Arthur's rifle. But the black hair disappeared, and the weapon was lowered.

Father was now so near the scene of danger that we had no alternative but to watch. Terrible as was her anxiety, mother now felt that Arthur had discovmother now felt that Arthur had discovered what kind of game the old stump contained. She knew that the Indian could not fire at father without exposing his own head, and that the moment it appeared it would be covered by her brave boy's rifle.

How our hearts beat for the few moments that intervened! Another gobble came from the stump. Father was working his way stealthily toward it in anticipation of a prize, and Arthur lay still as death in the grass.

All at once we saw the sunlight glance upon a mass of long raven hair that

But there was a still more sudden leap from the old stump, for an Indian, with flying hair, and with his rifle still clutched in his hand, sprang up and fell dead against the slope which had concealed him from father's view.

The reunion which followed, when we all ran into each other's arms, joyful, yet thrilled with consternation, I will not the large.

A Phenomenal Memory.

The peculiar duties of postoffice employes are such that no outsider can ac quire any precise knowledge of them. They must be learned by actual practice Applicants for positions are therefore not subjected to rigorous examination before appointment, but they must have a fair education and be well recom-mended for honosty, industry and so-briety, and be able-bodied. After appointment, however, they are regularly examined in all things pertaining to their duties, in which they must show a satisfactory progress, either to obtain promotion or to retain their positions, Examinations are made in the St. Louis postoffice from six to eight times every month, so that each employe gets an overhauling about twice a year. This system of examination has added much to the efficiency of the force, and throws promotion open to the competition of all and the best man wins. In some of the divisions a good memory is one of the indispensable requisites, and notably so in the mailing and distrib-uting divisions. In the mailing divis-ion one of the clerks who was taken on the force about eighteen months ago and who was given the lowest position, has been several times promoted on account of his good record, and at his last examination gave evidence of his close application and phenomenal memory. It is customary for the examiner to name the postoffices in a certain amount of territory and require the examines to give the location. In this case the employe was examined on the postoflices of Missouri, of which there are

1,790. He did not need to be questioned, but without prompting named every postoffice in the State and the county in which it is situated, and without missing or mistaking a postofilee or a county, and did this in thirty minutes. This is hard to beat.—St. Louis Repub-

What is called blind staggers in mules is caused principally by indigestible food and hard driving in hot wenther. Hard whole corn, then a pail of water or more on top, after which the animal is sent quickly to work, cause a rush of blood to the head and staggers. Keeping a wet sponge on the top of the head between the cars will help to ward off an attack in hot weather. But softoff an attack in hot weather. But softer and more easily digosted food, with a little salt daily, will remove the cause, which is far better than applying remediate for a structure of the cause. dies after an attack.

-The kinds of grass suited for permanent pasture depend upon the kind of soil. Indeed, it is hardly worth while of soil. Indeed, it is hardly worth while to try to seed down permanently any but moist soils. For these the following kinds of grass are best suited: Red-top, five pounds per acre; creeping bent, five pounds; meadow spear-grass, four pounds; fowl meadow-grass, four pounds; red foscue, five pounds; meadow fescue, six pounds; tall fescue, five pounds; meadow out-grass, four pounds; crested dog's tail, six pounds; timothy, six pounds.

-There are many ways of preserv ing bouquets, some being pretty successful in keeping the flowers a long time in all their beauty. Here is a new method we have recently met with; perhaps those of an experimental turn of mind will give it a trial. Sprinkle the bouquet lightly with fresh water, and put it in a vase containing soapsuds. Each morning take the bouquet out of the suds and lay it sideways in clean water; the suds, and it will remain as frosh as when first gathered. Change the suds overy three or four days. This method, it is said, will keep a bouquet bright and beautiful for at least a month.

Diseases of Poultry.

Fowls are particularly liable to colds; as the air-cells occupy so large a part of their physical framework. Where there s a slight cold, put the fowl in a warm, sunny place, give warm food, and nothing more will be needed. The same method should be pursued in hard colds. If there is much fever, put four drops of tincture of aconite into the water, or sweeten it, and make it a little sour with sulphuric or nitric acid. Add to the food a pinch of ginger or cayenne pep-per. If there is much swelling about he head, a mild purge will be useful. The homocopaths give mercur virus for slight colds, cuphrasia for more serious ones; each thrice daily, adding aconite for the fever. A roup may only begin with catarrh. and, like roup, catarrh and bronchitis, sometimes cause death. But how are we to know such cases from roup? Simply by the offensive discharge at the beak which characterizes the latter dis-ease. When the fewl has a discharge at the beak that is not offensive, you may call it a simple entarrh or common cold. When the odor is bad it is roup. No better distinction is possible in the pres-ont state of knowledge of fowl ailments.

The difficulty in telling these maladies apart will suggest to the careful poulterer prompt isolation of cases where, he is not cortain.

Cough may come from parasites in the air passages. This applies more particularly to the sneezing effort caused by the gape worm in the threat of young chickens. A spasmodic cough, lasting a whole day even, is reported as having accompanied the opizootic. It yielded under a treatment with potash under a treatment with potash.

Consumption, or tubucular deposits, may be suspected where a cough does not yield to treatment, and admits of no other explanation. Cod-liver oil in barloy meal would be the treatment if any one really wanted to save consumptive foreign. They ought to be killed. Asthma is nothing more than roup; as far as we know, and very likely this name may have been given to cases of that sort.—American Poultry Yard.

taken. If not granted, the State will probably get a continuance of the case. In any event it is apparent that there will be another delay, by which the trial will not come on at this term of the court. It has been over three years since the murder was committed, and notwithstanding the large amount of money and time spent upon the case, there is every reason to believe that it will be some time yet before a final decision is reached

It is simply marvelous how quickly constitution, biliousness, sick headacho, fever and ague, and malaria, are cured by "Sollers' Liver Pills."

THE BOTTOMERS FIGURES. The bottomers who are on a strike object to the showing of the figures in last evening's Gazette, by which it appears they have been earning $15 a week. They say that those figures are of weeks when they had a rush of work, and that they do not always have such weeks. From their own time books they show that the last seven weeks the team of three mon referred to last evening, carned as follows: First week. $13.23
Second week. 32.52
Third week. 48.54
Fourth week. 45.44
Fifth week. 41.33
Seventh week. 44.33
Seventh week. 24.31

Total.....$279 72 This would make the average weekly wages of each man $13.31. The last week quoted they quit work Friday forencon. so that can hardly be considered a full week. Counting this out, and taking the figures presented by their books for the last seven weeks "full" work, it man $14.51 farmers last evening, but none is reportweeks $14.38 per man. But the strikers claim that the other teams did not carn as much as this, and that the average for be given. Overcoats will be in demand the year counting time when they had no work, would be much below this. -T. F. Murray's little son fell to day They also say that the team whose wages were quoted were not the leading team in the strike.

As the factory has arranged to do this work now by machinery instead of by hand, the differences in question between employes and employers need no further showings, and will result simply in the dissatisfied ones securing work elsewhere.

BERIOUSLY MURT.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon L. E. Curler met with a serious accident while employed as usual in Shopbell & Norris' factory. A piece of moulding being run through a rapidly revolving machine, struck him in the groin inflicting a terrible wound, entering the abdominal Wednesday. He will be remembered as cavity. The end of the piece of moulding was wedge-shape, and as it entered everal smaller pieces were broken off removed by Dr. l'hese were Palmer, and the wound dressed. There no apparent laceration of the intestines, but an injury of this extent and location is one the results of which cannot be fully determined at present. The wound is a decidedly bad one, at the best.

WILCOX VS. BATES.

The long drawn out Wilcox-Bates case, which has been taking the time and attention of Referee E. M. Hyzer for so long, has reached another milepost in its travels. The referee has decided in favor of A. C. Bates. The finding will be filed soon, and the amount which the decision makes in Bates' favor is not declared, but it is estimated to be between $5,000 and $6,000. The decision of the referee being that the basis of accounting should be what Bates & Harvey actually received for the farm, instead of the rental value.
